ARTICLE I, SECTION 2

"Representatives and direct Taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union, according to their respective Numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole Number of free Persons, including those bound to Service for a Term of Years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three fifths of all other Persons. The actual Enumeration shall be made within three Years after the first Meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent Term of ten Years, in such Manner as they shall by Law direct."

XIV Amendment

"Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed."

Census data are the basis of our REPRESENTATIVE DEMOCRACY critical to the PROTECTION OF CIVIL RIGHTS
used annually to distribute BILLIONS IN FEDERAL FUNDS and used to
MAKE INFORMED DECISIONS

Census data are used for apportionment of Congressional seats, and redistricting at all levels of government.

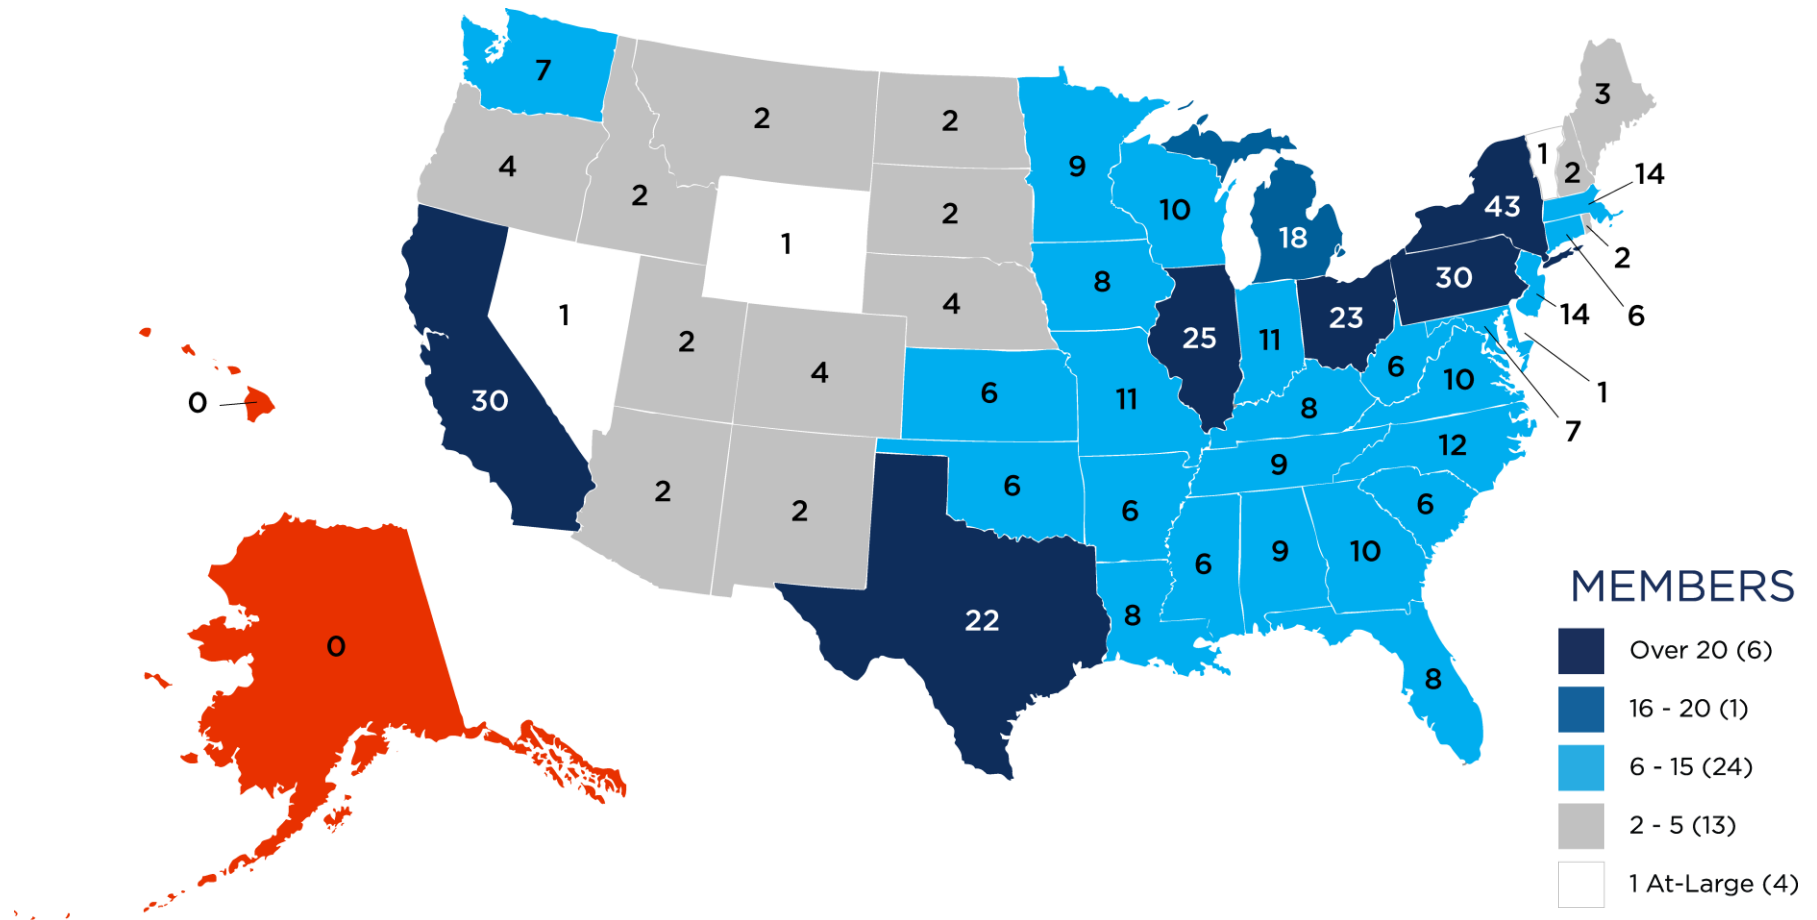

Census data are indispensable for monitoring and enforcement of a broad range of civil rights policies.

Census data guide the allocation of more than $700 billion in federal government resources to states, localities and families every year.

Latino Community Includes Many “Hard-to-Count” Residents

- Lower-income families
- Immigrants
- Individuals with low English-language proficiency
- Renters
- Residents who live in non-traditional housing
- Rural residents
- Highly mobile residents, such as farmworkers
- Very young children (under age 5)

Census 2010 missed more than 400,000 very young Latino children.

This is a uniquely high “undercount” rate. In 2010, the net undercount rate for very young Latino children was 7.1 percent, compared to 4.3 percent for non-Latinos.

2020 Census

Proposed Changes and New Approaches

- Bureau was mandated to conduct the 2020 Census at a lower cost per household than 2010. Its plans have fallen short.
- Bureau is making final tests to changes and new approaches which all have important implications for the Latino community:

Internet response as primary response option

Reduction in number of local census offices, field staff, field “presence”

Use of administrative records and other third-party data for address canvassing and non-response follow-up (NRFU)

Redesign of questions on Hispanic origin and race

A screenshot of a blue box containing the text "U.S. Citizen?" at the top. Below it are two options: "Yes" and "No", each followed by an empty white square checkbox.

Last-minute addition of untested question on citizenship

Census Bureau undertook extensive research to improve data collection on Hispanic origin and Race in 2020

Census Bureau staff recommended a new format that combined Hispanic Origin and Race that:

- Achieved significant decline in nonresponses and “some other race” responses
- Achieved better reporting of Latino identification by respondents
- Did not result in loss of data on Latinos who wish to identify with multiple major race/ethnicity groups
- Accommodated reporting of multiple Latino national origins.

Combined question required revision of federal standards on race and ethnicity data; OMB silent on decision to keep current standards in place.

Two-question format for Census 2020 raises questions

- Unclear how Latinos will be respond to detailed reporting of White and Black sub-group identifications; Afro-Caribbean examples not included in Black/African American question.
- Census Bureau projects that with two-question approach, “some other race” could become the second largest racial group in the nation in Census 2020.

Last-minute Administration decisions led to adverse changes in Hispanic origin question

- Question submitted to Congress for Census 2020 differs from one used in 2018 End-to-End test.
- Instructions for Hispanic origin question do not indicate that respondents can report multiple Latino national origins.
- Bureau does not intend to provide data on respondents who mark multiple boxes.

2020 Census

Inadequate Census Funding Puts Fair and Accurate 2020 Count at Risk

- Congress has underfunded the Bureau in FY 2016, FY 2017 and the first half of FY 2018.
- The FY 2018 omnibus appropriations provided $2.8 billion for the Bureau, a promising start to put Census 2020 back on track.
- The President's FY 2019 budget request includes $3.8 billion for the Bureau; insufficient for the continued ramp-up needed.
- Stakeholders are advocating for $4.7 billion for FY 2019, to fund a robust Census 2020 partnership and communications program, increase local Census offices, and provide a contingency fund requested by the Department of Commerce.
- There are good prospects for robust Census funding in the House Appropriations subcommittee's FY 2019 budget bill.

Consequences of Inadequate Funding for Census 2020

- Cancelled 2017 field tests in Puerto Rico and on Native American reservations.
- Cancelled two of three 2018 “dress rehearsal” sites, including Pierce County, WA with a significant Latino rural population, and scaled back the remaining site in Providence County, RI.
- Changed the enumeration approach for 12 million households in remote and rural areas.
- Delayed opening three of six Regional Census 2020 offices.
- Delayed communications campaign and Partnership Program.

Other Census Administration and Legislative Issues

- The Census Bureau has been without a permanent Director since July 1. The Administration must nominate a Director who is an established, nonpartisan leader with the expertise to lead the Bureau. At a May 10 hearing, Secretary Ross reported he has recommended a nominee, whom the White House is vetting.
- The GAO has designated Census 2020 as a “high risk” activity, citing new enumeration approaches and uncertain IT systems.
- Erosion of public trust regarding the privacy of information given to the Census Bureau, including via the internet, and increased fear among immigrants in contact with the government.
- Administration’s decision to hire only U.S. citizens as Census employees.

Administration's Last Minute Addition of Citizenship Question Puts Census 2020 at Serious Risk

- On March 26, the Secretary of Commerce agreed to a Department of Justice request, and added the citizenship question to the 2020 Census questionnaire at the last minute.
- Census Bureau submitted Census 2020 questionnaire to Congress with this question.

Is this person a citizen of the United States?

- ☐ Yes, born in the United States
- ☐ Yes, born in Puerto Rico, Guam, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or Northern Marianas
- ☐ Yes, born abroad of U.S. citizen parent or parents
- ☐ Yes, U.S. citizen by naturalization – Print year of naturalization
- ☐ No, not a U.S. citizen

Administration's actions to add citizenship question are flawed and specious.

- The Department of Justice and the Secretary of Commerce justified the addition by citing the need for better voting rights enforcement.
 - However, data from the American Community Survey, and the census "long" form before that, are sufficiently robust for civil rights and Voting Rights Act enforcement. The decennial census has not included a citizenship question since 1950, prior to the enactment of the Voting Rights Act in 1965.
- Secretary of Commerce claims lack of evidence that citizenship question will depress response rates, but question has not been tested in current political climate, in a form sent to 100% of population.
 - The "End to End" Providence County test does not include a citizenship question. Media report the issue is affecting participation.
 - Census Bureau representatives have already reported widespread and unprecedented fear among respondents to other surveys; they are reluctant to participate fully and provide accurate information.

The Administration's request is untimely.

- The Census Bureau conducts careful and costly testing over many years to develop the census questions.
- Census Bureau was required to submit topics for 2020 Census to Congress by March 31, 2017; citizenship was not submitted at that time.

The addition of a citizenship question to Census 2020 is costly.

- The Census Bureau expects that every one percent decrease in the self-response rate that it has budgeted will increase the cost of the census by $55 million. This figure was recently increased from $45 million and will likely increase again.
- A last-minute question would require redrafting all designed materials, adding unknown costs in design, labor, printing, and for other tasks.

The Impact of a Citizenship Question on Latino Participation in Census 2020

The addition of a citizenship question will deter participation, resulting in far less accurate data.

- The question will raise concerns in all households – native- and foreign-born– about the confidentiality of information provided to the government and how it will be used.
- Adding the question would sabotage the Constitutional mandate that the Census obtain a complete count of all of the nation's residents.

Bipartisan Opposition to the Addition of the Citizenship Question

There is a groundswell of bipartisan opposition to the addition of the citizenship question from a wide range of census stakeholders, including:

- More than 60 members of Congress;
- 161 Democratic and Republican mayors;
- Latino elected and appointed officials at all levels of government;
- Two former Commerce Secretaries and six former Census Directors who served in Republican and Democratic administrations;
- Nineteen Attorneys General;
- Scientific organizations such as the American Sociological Association, the Consortium of Social Science Associations, the Council for Community and Economic Research, the Council of Professional Associations on Federal Statistics, and the National Latino/a Psychological Association; and
- Business leaders from across the country concerned about undermining the validity of census data, and ultimately harming economic growth and development opportunities.

Strong Confidentiality Protections Safeguard Disclosure and Misuse of Census Data

Under Title 13 of U.S. Code:

- Census data can only be used for statistical purposes; personal information cannot be used against respondents in court or by a government agency.
- Personal census information cannot be disclosed for 72 years (includes names, addresses, Social Security numbers and telephone numbers).
- Census Bureau staff who have access to personal information are sworn for life to protect confidentiality.
 - Sworn staff are subject to a $250,000 fine and/or up to five years in prison for wrongful disclosure of information.

Policymakers and Advocates are Vigorously Challenging the Addition of a Citizenship Question

Secretary of Commerce must justify new topic:

Because the Bureau did not submit citizenship as one of the topics for Census 2020 to Congress by March 31, 2017, the Secretary of Commerce must demonstrate that there are “new circumstances” for adding a new topic after that deadline. It is unclear whether the Secretary has done so, and this may be one ground for challenging a new citizenship question.

Litigation:

The State of California is challenging the question in court, and New York is leading a multi-state action against the Administration’s decision. Civil rights organizations are also bringing court actions.

Congressional action:

Members of Congress are working to move legislation forward that would prevent the addition of the citizenship question.

The House Committee on Oversight and Government Reform held a May 8th hearing on Census 2020 and invited John Gore, acting head of DOJ Civil Rights Division to testify, but he did not appear. Mr. Gore testified on May 18.

Public opinion advocacy:

Several media outlets have been covering the citizenship question issue; as policymakers and advocates continue to speak out, that coverage is becoming more intense.

The fight has just begun – join us!

There is still time –

The Census Bureau has time before it must finalize the on-line and paper form of the Census questionnaire.

We are launching an comprehensive advocacy campaign against the addition of the citizenship question, mobilizing our members and stakeholders by:

- Providing sample letters and other resources to submit comments to the Bureau and OMB when opportunities arise.
- Conducting regular “Call-in Days,” to Secretary Ross and Members of Congress, opposing the citizenship question.
- Continuing to promote legislative and public opinion advocacy, by providing materials and resources. A sample letter and social media guide are available at: www.naleo.org/actionalert_march2018

How Civic Engagement Groups Can Prepare for Census 2020

- Review outreach and messaging approaches to determine which strategies can be adapted to Census 2020
- Identify potential partners and build/strengthen relationships with likely “trusted messengers”
- Assess feasibility of working with state and local “Complete Count Committees”
- Advocate with federal policymakers to provide the Census Bureau with the ramp-up in funding needed for a sound Census 2020
- Assess capacity to carry out potential “Get-Out-the Count” activities:
 - Prepare and disseminate informational materials
 - Provide questionnaire assistance
 - Conduct community forums
 - Work with traditional and social media on messaging campaign

2020 Census: Key Upcoming Activities

2018 Partnership Program – Launch of the partnership program
Complete Count Committees – Formation of committees should be complete

Advertising – Begins in early 2020

Census Day – April 1, 2020

2019-2020 Nonresponse Follow Up – Begins in late April and continues until late June/early July
Apportionment Counts to the President – by December 31, 2020

2021 Redistricting Counts to the States – by March 31, 2021
